typed in correctly and blur the editor the next time and start moving from one field to another an error notification every time – unless the notifier is a stressful experience for the end user a minimum for such “browsing” rather than

Multiple progressing validation indicators

As a user I expect that for a field with multiple criteria of the criteria are met, and which are not yet style and appearance of the igNotifier, but since it progressively updates each bullet based on my entry in real time, the bullets might be styled differently according to whether their criteria are met.
